

LIN XIANG - PROFESSIONAL SERVICES MANAGER

Lin was born in China and obtained a Bachelor of Chemical Engineering before starting a completely different career as an engineer in a data centre. With a desire to formalise his education in the IT industry, Lin moved to Australia and studied Information Systems, E-commerce and Databases.

After a couple of years of study and a first on-the-job experience at an IT company on Sydney's North Shore, Lin joined Correct Solutions in 2009.

Coupling a problem-solving temperament with an ardent passion for everything technology, Lin is responsible for the Professional Services team here at Correct Solutions. Lin is accountable for delivery of projects, consulting and workshops as well as pre-sales information gathering and solution design in collaboration with the Sales Team. Lin is also a member of the Correct Solutions Executive team.

More than a job, Lin's interest in the IT industry is a real hobby. As technology is constantly evolving, Lin believes that you must live and breathe it in order to best understand it. After many years on the technical side, Lin is now using his knowledge to live out Corrects' Purpose; making a difference to the companies we serve by assisting to improve how they run their business through the use of technology.

When not hard at work, Lin is a serious aquarist with his elaborate salt water corals and fish tanks. Other interests centre around movies, computer games as well as workouts to ensure he remains fit and healthy. In the near future, Lin would like to continue improving his work/life balance, while taking on a more senior role and raising his two daughters.
